Teaching is a passion for me. I would do it for free if I had no financial needs. What I enjoy the most are the Eureka moments in the classroom, during discussions, stories or when showing examples of the subject and it all makes sense. Aside from those moments, seeing progress and improvement in a student, the growth of their understanding is priceless.

I have been teaching my whole life, songs in kindergarten, knots in the boy scouts, everything I could in the military and personal finance was the first official class I taught to High School students.

I've been with the university since 2023, assisting students in the Spangdahlem office mainly, but also honored to be teaching in the evenings as an adjunct instructor.

Outside the classroom you might see me at the airport or train station, playing sports or exercising, wellbeing is a top priority for me.
